Students listen with delight on Tuesday morning as Michael Winslow, known as a “human sound-effects machine,” delivers an expressive reading of children’s books during an event at Ss. Peter and Paul Catholic School. Winslow, who is best known for his stand-up comedy and his roles in the “Police Academy” movies, visited the school as part of Resort to Reading, an ongoing literacy program sponsored by Mahogany Run Golf Course and Ginn Clubs and Resorts. The reading on Tuesday was in honor of National Library Week, and it also included students from Jane E. Tuitt Elementary and Leonard Dober Elementary schools.
